I cannot say enough great things about this book. I randomly found it on when I was looking for tennis specific fitness books. I have three children who all play tennis competitively. They have been to several academies and have been taking lessons for a few years. I have been searching and asking for help with developing a plan to help my kids maximize their potential as tennis players. I felt we don't have an organized plan towards their goals. Frank systematically and thoughtfully reviews how to approach developing your child in this sport and truly maximize their potential. He lays out a plan with a breakdown of the hours your child will need to spend in the different areas of training in tennis depending on their goals. Most importantly, he stresses the importance of the parental role in this game. I can't even begin to cover in this brief review how detailed and carefully written this book is but it is a must read for any parent of a tennis player. I think this book reaches parents and families across all sports of young athletes. I really wish I would have found this book several years ago when my children started playing however I am so happy to have it now!

This book is a gold mine of information for not only parents and players but coaches as well. Find out about college tennis, pro tennis, development physically, mentally, and emotionally from one of America's finest tennis professionals. Frank has added another gem to his excellent tennis publications. I highly recommend the Tennis Parents Bible 2nd Edition. Bruce Gullikson USPTA Elite Professional

The greatest teacher in the life of a child is their parents. Their influence trumps that of any others. If you are striving for success in tennis this book is a must read for all. It provides the blueprint for success both on the court and in using the sport to teach lessons that will serve a player well in all facets of their life. I would give it my highest recommendation!
